Barbara Shermund (1910-1978) Formally dressed sophisticates with long cigarette holders, Ink wash on Illustration board. Barbara was a prolific cartoonist best known for being one of the first cartoonists to gain prominence in the pages of The New Yorker magazine. Between 1926 and 1944 she contributed almost 600 cartoons and eight covers. Image from the Society of Illustrators Permanent Collection.