Harrison Fisher (1875–1934), Untitled, Watercolor. Fisher became known particularly for his drawings of women, which won him acclaim as the successor of Charles Dana Gibson. Fisher’s work appeared regularly on the cover of Cosmopolitan magazine from the early 1900s until his death. Image from the Society of Illustrators Permanent Collection.